

Case Study

Client: Queen Mary University of London -
John Vane Science Centre

Project Date: March 2018

Project Value: £8k

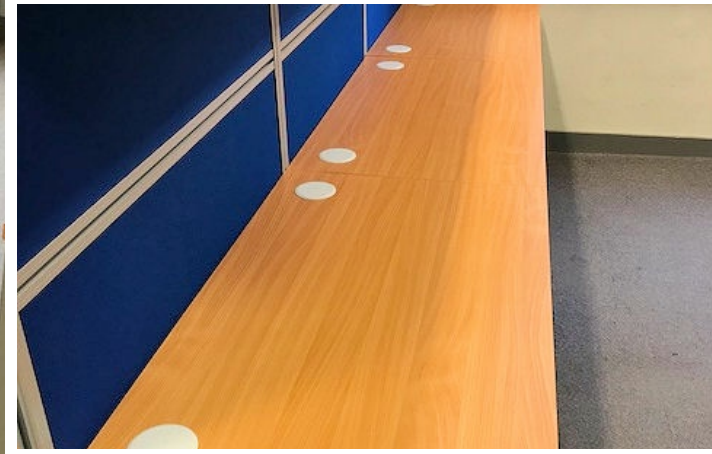

Project Management Service including:

- Out of normal office hours work
- Educational furniture

Creative educational furniture refurbishment – designed with care to suit a busy University office environment.

As an educational furniture specialist, MACOI worked together with the John Vane Science Centre at the Queen Mary University of London when they needed additional desking and storage solutions for their growing office at Charterhouse Square.

The stylish and practical desk solutions with square tubular leg frames and cable port management were carefully selected for their strength and durability to meet the demanding needs of the challenging environment. The desks were finished in Beech with striking Scuba-blue floor-standing screens, that incorporated bespoke Silver and Beech shelves that provided additional personal storage space for each user.

Prior to the installation we supplied the University with packing crates to ensure all important papers and equipment were protected and secure. The delivery and installation was completed over a weekend to ensure no disruption occurred to staff or students at the University, with all unwanted furniture removed from site.